DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Friedheim (US 5,471,556) in view of Preston (US 2,515,835), Langmuir et al (US 2,437,963), or Campbell et al (US 5,535,149).

Friedheim shows a superheated vapor generating system and method claimed including a superheated generating chamber, an output for outputting the superheated vapor, control means for controlling the input and output of the heated steam through a conduit means, a handle with an insulation layer sheath over the conduit means, and a nozzle. But it does not show an independent second heating means.

Preston, Langmuir, or Campbell shows that it is well known in the art of the vaporized heated steam systems with an independent second heating means to further heat the heated steam out of a steam generating chamber wherein the second heating element is in thermal contact with a conduit means which transfer the heated steam. Campbell also teaches that its steam generating chamber at about 500° F which is then further heated to 1500-3000° F.

In view of Preston, Langmuir, or Campbell, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to adapt Friedheim with means such the heating means to further heat the superheated vapor produced or output by the steam generating chamber to not only maintain but also to adjust the temperature of the superheated steam, including the recited ranges of 1000-2000° F or more, to meet the desired applications for such superheated vapor which would vary depending on its particular intended purposes by the user.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

With respect to Preston, the applicant argues that Preston is wholly distinct and different from applicant's invention such that Preston is not related to superheated vapor or steam. This argument is not deemed persuasive since Preston relates to a process of reheating of a heated steam for producing higher superheated steam. This teaching allows one of ordinary skill to modify that of the claimed invention to include a second heating means in its conduit to further heat its heated steams to a higher heated temperature as done in the claimed invention.

With respect to Langmuir, the applicant argues there is no teaching of the superheated vapor. While Langmuir shows no superheated vapor, it is noted that Langmuir is applied to show employing a second heating means in its conduit means to further reheat the heated vapor as done in the claimed invention. Such teaching would have allowed one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the applied Friedheim to incorporate a second heating means in its conduit means to further reheat the heated vapor.

The applicant also argues that a related PCT Search report and Opinion is binding in this application and that its report and opinion cannot be overturned in this application. It is noted the IPEA search report and opinion is non-binding under 37 CFR 1.484(a).

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
